So there are plenty of relations to entertain for the little bud, and I understand many of them will.

THEN there are two Harrison debu-I tantes, but not closely related ones, Filen being a member of the Charles Custis Harrison family, and Maud, of the Josephs Harrisons, whose name was given to the row of houses of Lo-cust street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets. They are distantly however, and are very good friends incidentally.

Ellen is the second daughter of the Ellen is the second daughter of the Charles Custis Harrison, Jrs. Her mother was pretty Marie Lemolne, of this city, and she still is pretty; in fact, the beautiful Mrs. Harrison she may well be called. Ellen spent last year abroad, and is going the latter part of this month with her mother and Augusta to Northeast Harbor for a of weeks. The Harrisons live Rittenhouse square in the winter nd in summer bave their home in

Maud Harrison is the third daughter of the Joseph L. Harrisons, of Rosemont, and I can say with truth, daugh-ter of another beautiful Mrs. Harrison. for her mother was Margaretta Large, one of the most attractive buds of her year. Maud is a sister of Sarah Harrison, who married Phil Price in early June. And Margaretta Harrison, who came out two years ago, is another sis-Maud is very attractive, rather taller than Margaretta and Sarah and, if anything, a little darker. Margaret Newlin, who is to be introduced this year, and Elizabeth Siter, another debutante who will have her ten with Margaret, are both cousins of Maud

DID you hear that Jack and Betty D Strubing Caner have a darling wee baby daughter? She is to be christened Ann Caner and she came into the world on the twenty-first of this month. If on the twenty-first of this month. If the little lady is as pretty as her mother she already has a decided gift, and will doubtless charm us all as Betty always has. I remember her beautiful bit of aesthetic dancing in "The Talk of the Town," which Molly Thayer wrote for the screen, and which was given with incidental dances and country place in Devon. She had a beautiful time and specially enjoyed playing about the lawn with a pet celle dog, throwing sticks and balls for him to run after and bring back.

And she talked so much about him when she came home early last week, daddy thought he would get her a dog. Now he it known that Lilian's family ives in town. And a big dog is rather three in fown.e. And a big and is rather unwieldy in a city house, so a rather fine toy dog with a short appendage was chosen. Lilian seemed pleased, but very quiet, too; and finally Mother gained the following confidence: "I fink he's beautiful, muy, but I do love the kind that have more wass to them." the kind that have more wags to them.
